

Lost Jimmy Glass Again Believed Found

Mother of Little Missing Jersey City Boy Starts for Nicholasville, Ky., to See Lad Abandoned There by Two Men.

NEW YORK, April 8.—Mrs. Charles L. Glass, of Jersey City, has set out again on the dreary road she has traveled so often since her four-year-old son, Jimmy, disappeared last summer. This time the mother, with the old hope again new, is speeding toward Nicholasville, Ky., whence comes the latest report of the finding of the little boy.

Since the day in May, when the child was playing bareheaded in front of the Glass summer home in Greeley, Pa., and disappeared, the mother has traveled more than 5,000 miles, tracking down rumors that gave up no definite clue. Once Jimmy was found in Oklahoma. Once he was held in South Carolina. Each time Mrs. Glass has hurried to greet him. Each time she has come back, ill from the shock of disappointment.

When she left Jersey City yesterday afternoon, the woman's cheeks were flushed with excitement, and her voice was eager. "I'm sure it is Jimmy," she said. "I never was so sure before." These were almost the last words she used before when she set out on the trail that led to disillusionment.

"Poor White" Gives Clue.

Mr. Glass has accompanied his wife. With the couple goes a detective of the Jersey City force. They expect to reach Lexington some time today. Nicholasville is a little town near there, and Pink, a canning community, lies four miles away from Nicholasville. At Pink lives Mrs. Martha Miller, a "poor white" who believes that the four-year-old boy who was left with her by a woman attired in man's clothing is Jimmy Glass.

Persons in Nicholasville agree with Mrs. Miller. The physician who examined the boy asserts that he is Jimmy Glass. The photographer who took the picture of him which Mrs. Glass received yesterday says he is the missing child. The mother kissed the photograph when it arrived and pressed it almost fiercely against her breast—as she had kissed the pictures of those two other waifs who she found to be other mothers' children. Meanwhile the little yellow-haired boy cries in Mrs. Miller's cabin for "mother" and "Madeline" and "Aunt Emma." Mrs. Glass' daughter, called Madeline; the woman has a sister named Emma.

According to the story Mrs. Miller tells, a month after Jimmy Glass disappeared last summer two men and a woman came to the cabin she was living in in another part of the State. With them was a man, not a boy, as Mrs. Miller always addresses her charge by. But the child speaks of himself as Jimmy.

For months the baby lived with the woman and her husband, "Link." Neither of the couple can read, but presently news of Jimmy Glass came. They had in their cabin dribbled down into the valley where Nicholasville lies. Persons who had read of the missing Jimmy Glass, the mother said, had pointed to Pink to see him come back disappointed. It wasn't the missing lad, they said. This child had short hair. The boy who was missing had long curls.

But some one in Nicholasville wrote to Mrs. Glass. She wired at once for further description, giving, at the same time, details for the identification of the child.

Body Marks the Same.

According to reports from Nicholasville, the Holly Ray Fairchild of the Miller cabin is Jimmy Glass, or his double. This boy has the mole upon his left ear, which the missing boy had. Another mole, at the waistline, makes this identification more certain.

Jimmy Glass had a double crown to his head, a rare malformation. This boy, the physicians who examined him says, also possesses this strange characteristic.

Mrs. Glass then sent a photograph of her home to Nicholasville. When shown to the child he babbled of "mamma" and "Aunt Emma."

Hears of Lost Boy.

Mrs. Miller says that the woman in man's clothing wheeled upon him. "Hit that boy again," she threatened, "and I'll send you to jail, you kidnapper."

Then she turned to the amazed Mrs. Miller and explained that she wished to leave the child. The woman protested, but the threatening words of the trio caused her to comply. "Holly Ray Fairchild," as they called the boy, was left on her hands and the three disappeared. "Holly" is the name that Mrs. Miller always addresses her charge by. But the child speaks of himself as Jimmy.

LEXINGTON, Ky., April 8.—All Nicholasville, and persons from Lexington who have seen the lad, whom Mrs. Martha Miller says is Holly Ray Fairchild, are certain he is the missing Jimmy Glass.

Emil Ihardt, a photographer, who made the picture of the child which has been sent to Mrs. Glass, is certain the boy is her son. The physician in Nicholasville, who examined him, is also certain that the Glass family has at last found its missing child.

Mr. and Mrs. Link Miller came to Pink near Nicholasville, a few months ago. They say that while living in Garrard county, in the southeastern part of the State, the boy was brought to them.

Since the three persons described by Mrs. Miller departed, leaving the child behind them, they have communicated with the Millers several times. The last letter, received several weeks ago, was postmarked Crab Orchard, Ky., but was written on the stationery of a Montana firm. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Miller can read. It was through their appeal to their neighbors for a translation of these letters that it became known that the boy they had with them was not their own.

Wouldn't Let His Bride Kiss the Magistrate

ALTON, Ill., April 8.—S. L. Moore refused to permit Police Magistrate Maguire to kiss his bride, who was Mrs. Nellie R. Morton, after the magistrate had performed the wedding ceremony.

When the ceremony was concluded the magistrate remarked that the bride had better kiss the bridegroom, and if there was any kissing left, one ought to be bestowed on the officiating justice. When the bride approached the police magistrate, the bridegroom pulled her back, saying: "Don't, Nellie, he's too old to be kissed."

Pacific Liner Feared Lost; 12 Days Overdue

LONDON, April 8.—A cable message to the Japanese steamship Ide Maru, Seattle, February 22, for Vladivostok, is twelve days overdue. The cable message says there are reasons to fear the worst concerning the Ide Maru's fate.

The Ide Maru, formerly the Haku-shika Maru, has a gross tonnage of 4,645 tons and is 400 feet long. She was built in 1889 and is owned in Yokohama.

300 New Suits

On Sale Tomorrow

The price—$10—is not merely for tomorrow—but tomorrow's visitors will get better values than those who call later. It's because some of the models are samples—worth very much more than $10—and they will be the first to go.

Two Models Illustrated

Pictures can deceive. These will tell you of correct styles and perfect lines, but the quality of the cloths, the trimmings, linings, and most important, the tailoring, has to be learned by personal inspection. The keenest criticism is earnestly requested—because these suits will prove the greatest marvel to the most hypercritical visitor.

Every Latest Style Represented

The miss of 14 to 18 years and the woman of 34 to 44 size are assured their ideals. Every latest model is here—plaited jackets, Norfolk style, flare peplums, belted, flapped, strapped, braided, plain tailored and trimmed; skirts belted, shirred, and with slashed pockets; full flaring effect.

Your model is here—try it on tomorrow.

$10 Silk Dresses

These are even more wonderful than the suits—with all the best silks and all the wanted and scarce colors represented. Some of these dresses—the samples—are made up elaborately enough to cost $10 for making alone.

Sport Dresses, Evening Dresses, Street Dresses

Taffeta Silk—Crepe Meteor—Novelty Silks

The sport dresses—with coat and skirt—will appeal to college girls and petite women who can wear chic styles. The street dresses are really in variety for all occasions. The evening dresses include samples worth so much more than $10.00 that our claim would sound unreasonable. See them for yourself.
